All remaining rejections/objections follow.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6, 10-12, 14, 15, 17, 18, 20 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Quinn et al. (GB 2106120).

See the previous Office action at the paragraph bridging pages 3 and 4 et seq.

Applicants are claiming a product, not a process and it is therefore immaterial that Quinn may not disclose a continuous process unless it is clear that the process limitation of "continuous" necessarily embraces a different product than a non continuous one. However, the term "continuous embraces reaction in in a pipe reactor such as is capable of reacting components in such a manner that every reaction element in contact with each other has been present in the reaction mixture for the same amount of time such as is the case with a batch reaction. Admittedly the sort of continuous reactor in which reactants are fed into a vat or large volume vessel and material removed continuously from the vessel would not likely produce the same sort of product as Quin but nonetheless the claims also embrace other sorts of continuous reaction apparatus (such as a pipe reactor) which would. Furthermore, patentees in example 2 utilize continuous addition of monomer (page 4, lines 36-40) such as would be expected to result in a monomer concentration which would vary less than a batch type reaction where monomer is added all at once and the more reactive monomer consumed more rapidly leading to much different monomer concentrations at the beginning than at the end of the polymerization. Quins process would therefore have a more narrow compositional associated with the product than a process in which all reactants were added in the beginning of the reaction.
